PDF Feature weighting as a tool for unsupervised feature clustering algorithms generate a clustering S and provide information regarding the relationships between the clusters themselves, at a usually higher computational cost.

US7953679B2 Scalable indexing for layout based document

A computer-based method and a system for indexing, querying, and ranking documents based on layout are provided. The method includes providing a plurality of documents to computer memory, extracting layout blocks from the provided documents, clustering the layout blocks into a plurality of layout block clusters, computing a representative block
